Colour Accounting President to present to CPA's in Vancouver

Peter Frampton, President & Co-founder of Colour Accounting International will be making a presentation at the CPA One conference in Vancouver on September 20th. Speaking before the Chartered Public Accountants of Canada at their first ever National Conference in British Columbia, Peter's topic will be: "Business Comes Alive - Raising Financial Acumen Across Your Organization". While Professional Accountants certainly are experts in accounting and many are great communicators, getting their clients to understand the basics of financial statements is still an issue. Colour accounting is a simple way to have everybody speaking the same language. Stephanie Descoteaux, who leads Colour Accounting courses in Vancouver will be accompanying Peter at the conference.

Customized courses for specific areas

While the basics of accounting is the same for all organizations, colour accounting trainers will customize the training for your organization. This has more value because it addresses your issues and gives a forum for your staff to speak the same financial language. Many trainers also offer industry specific courses where people from different businesses within the same sector hire an instructor to present a course .

John Gorman of Washington DC has led the way by doing workshops for Law Firms. Mark Robilliard of Wisconsin, is concentrating on medium sized mid-western businesses. Stephanie Descoteaux specializes with small entrepreneurs while Sam Weller works with Governments and not-for-profits.

Color Accounting In Schools

After having successfully piloted Color Accounting in Schools throughout a few regions in 2014 and 2015, we have built a complete accounting teacher's ecosystem for the 2016 calendar year: AccountingSchool.org.

The Color Accounting system is used to augment the traditional curricula in high schools, colleges and universities. The results have been spectacular: jumps in re-enrollment by 39%, increased student comprehension and enthusiasm, enthusiastic emails from grateful parents, much improved pass rates and in one spectacular success, for the first time ever, accounting topped the school as the highest scoring subject in their Year 12 program with more distinctions (As) than any other subject.

Teachers tell us they also see accounting in a new and clearer light themselves. Not to mention rediscovering their enjoyment for teaching this important subject.

The learner materials have been adapted for semester-long and year-long courses. The BaSIS Box™ shown below contains the same Framework used in day-long workshops, but with a lid to store the hands-on learning materials between classes. The Student Workbook contains some 60 lessons containing theory and practical exercises. The student website supports each lesson with instructional videos, support materials and extender questions. The all new, teachers-only website contains videos on how to use color accounting in the class, the Teacher's Guide and the suggested solutions to the activities in the Student Workbook and the Extender questions (downloadable).

Our goal is to make it super-easy for any teacher to pick up and use the Color Accounting system. Even if your school doesn't have the resources to acquire the stationery packs, you can still use the Color Accounting system in your classes.

Currently, the Accounting in Schools program uses materials designed for accounting students in South Africa. The spelling is UK-centric and the currency unit for the activities is the Rand. Nevertheless, the fundamentals of accounting are the same and these materials can be used now in any English-speaking country. In time the materials will be available in other languages.
